

Intermezzo

Intermezzo is actually the very first piece I ever played at the age of 3. It was the tune my mother used to hum when she did housework, dusting the furniture. I asked my grandmother if I could play the piano, never playing it before. She thought I was going to pound. I touched one key in the middle, then one key higher. Then my hands just started playing this piece. My grandmother asked me to do it again and then told me just to wait until my mother got home. I thought I was in trouble..
